

Aboriginal Legal Services Belleville

Aboriginal Legal Services Belleville - Tort law cases deal with civil wrongs. For example, if you have sustained an injury or undue harm as a result of intentional wrongdoing or negligence by another individual, you could be eligible for damage compensation in a tort law case.

The most common types of tort law cases include: negligence leading to car accidents and medical malpractice and personal injury. Our firm's lawyers will help you determine what charges should be laid against the responsible parties. Even parties not directly involved with an action that caused you harm may be held accountable for damages. For example, the driver behind the wheel of a delivery truck can be held accountable for harming you in an accident, but so can the employer which hired the driver. Several parties can, in particular cases, be charged with negligence for the harm which you suffer.

Our tort lawyers are experienced at trying tort law cases. If you have been badly affected by a civil wrong, call us for an assessment of your case. We will assist you to know your legal options and guide you through all aspects of the tort law case.
