Copyright Lawyer Belleville - If there are not enough systems to decrease risks are not in place, the difficult web of global laws and regulations governing competitive conduct in today's world, can leave companies facing a variety of corporate compliance issues. The many consequences can comprise hefty fines for alleged price fixing, and jail time for those individuals whose businesses have violated antitrust laws. Litigation by private people, like for instance class action lawsuits, can result in settlements or damage awards totaling millions of dollars. Our office offers business clients efficient representation and practical recommendation so as to help them establish corporate compliance systems in order to maximize their ability to compete legally and efficiently. Our competition/antitrust lawyers give expert guidance regarding difficult problems that can negatively effect the operations and ability to survive of a company.

Our Competition/Antitrust lawyers work in all areas of marketing, competition/antitrust and advertising law. Our lawyers are regularly requested to write and speak about competition law topics for business, academic and legal audiences. We have knowledge in mergers, price fixing investigations, product pricing, packaging, advertising, labeling and distribution problems. Our litigators have acted for clients before the courts, the Competition Tribunal and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal. Our lawyers draw upon different members all over our business for expertise in intellectual property, trade remedies, commercial and franchising problems associated with product distribution. We also help in the defence of criminal and quasi-criminal allegations.
